
BURNTSAND SIGNS NEXT PHASE OF PROJECT WITH MAJOR U.S. MANUFACTURER

Contract valued at CDN$785,000 in services over the next three months

Toronto, ON. March 31, 2005 - Burntsand Inc., a North American business consulting and technology services company, today announced the company has received an extension on its previously announced contract with a major NYSE listed U.S. manufacturer.

Burntsand will deliver services for the next phase of an Enterprise Content Management (ECM) system. This phase will significantly enhance the authoring, storage, distribution, and usability of government required, highly regulated and very complex documents and processes.

The requirements phase of the project, scheduled for delivery from Burntsand's Canadian locations, is valued at approximately CDN$785,000 in Enterprise Content Management integration services. A number of new requirements and enhancements were identified to support a new product manufacturing program for the company. This is the next phase of the contract awarded in November 2003.

Burntsand is a leader in the area of Enterprise Content Management with expertise in document management, web content management, portals, personalization, collaboration and web-enabled commerce. This project continues to move the manufacturer from a client-server environment to a customized J2EE web based application with an enterprise content management foundation.

"Burntsand continues to deliver real value to this world class U.S. manufacturer. Our delivery methodology, Upfront[™], of segmenting significant projects into component phases ensures that client experience and progress is not only measured, but met at key intervals. This enables enhancements to be identified and much more easily integrated into the client solution", stated Jim Yeates, Burntsand Chairman and CEO. "Through the diligent work of our client team, lasting relationships such as this continue to grow."
